Council Brushes Maguet Request

The city council received a complaint last week from a man who said his efforts to hold down costs had been frustrated by the city and the Seaside Parade Association.

Glen Maguet, Redwood City, who is a part-time parade consultant, said a $750 carnival fee charged by the city and cash donations made by the parade association to local groups like Young Adults for action offset his cost-cutting work.

Maguet's request was brushed aside by the council concerning the waiveing of the carnival fee, which he described as "outrageous" but did agree to seek a detailed accounting of parade association expenditures from former Councilman Gerald McGraft, its chairman.

According to Maguet, his costs were kept under $5,000 by reducing printing, phone and insurance expenses, procuring cheaper rides, eliminating a float and not holding a parade wokers party.

Maguet continued saying, "I worked hard at this because I was told that any money I saved this year could be used to put on a better parade next year. But instead, the rest of the association's budget was mostly eaten up by the carnival fee and by donations including $300 that went to Young Adults "without my approval."

Maguet also donated his services and even brought some trophies, but said, his expenses had not yet been paid.

"The most recent accounting," says Maguet, "shows $378.52 left from $6,000 when 14 outstanding checks come in. Making up the difference would be the association's responsibility, City Manager Milton Farrell said.

THE ACCOUNTING

Councilman Joseph Cota and Stephen Ross asked interim City Attorney Myron Haas to ask McGraft to come before the council with detailed accounting. McGraft did not attend last week's meeting, saying the next morning tnat any financial questions were 'administrative' and many amateur parade groups were slow in cashing their checks and he could not make his final report until they did.

McGraft said he did not consider the carnival fee a bit unusual, since the association is semi-public, semi-charitable organization.

When McGraft informed Maguet's remarks about donations he said, "all expenditures were approved by the association and Maguet was aware of them.

HASSEL ON PARADE

Seaside nearly missed an independent day parade this year, as the Seaside Chamber of Commerce withdrew as parade sponsor after a dispute with the city. McGraft then formed the non-profit corporation, the parade association, to sponsor the event under a $6,000 contract with the city.

Ramsey Clark To Speak at NAACP Dinner

Former U. S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark will be principal speaker at a dinner to be held under the auspices of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco on Saturday evening, November 20.

In announcing the dinner, Mrs. Charlotte People, Special Projects Coordinator for the organization's Western Region, said that proceeds will help underwrite the costs of the "first of its kind" lawsuit filed recently in Sacramento Federal Court by NAACP attorneys.

"This omnibus suit will seek statewide decrees requiring that the state government develop and put into effect comprehensive plans to end racial discrimination one and for all, Mrs. Poole said, "and even though our attorney are contributing their own time and skills to the project, there are enormous costs connected with a lawsuit of this magnitude."

Nathaniel S. Colley of Sacramento, Regional Attorney for the NAACP and General Chairman for the dinner, announced the names of the four people who will serve as Honorary Co-Chairmen. They are: Congressman Augustus Hawkins of Los Angeles; Norman O. Houston, Sr., president of the Golden State Mutual Life Insurance Company; Mrs. Virginia Robinson, president, Richmond, California NAACP and William M. Roth, Regent of the University of California and president, Roth Properties.

Mrs. Poole said that contributions to the $100 per plate affair are tax deductible.

Reservations may be made by contacting the NAACP Regional Office at 955 Market Street, San Francisco 94103, or calling her at (415) 982-6992.

HONOR DEAD HEROES - Bugler plays taps. which was followed by 30 seconds of silent prayer for soldiers who have been killed in action at last Monday's observances of Veteran's Day. Seaside American Leagon Post 591 sponsored activities at eternal flame at City Hall. Color guards from other legion posts, Veterans of Foreign Wars and other veterans' organizations from Monterey, Carmel and Marina took part in activities.

Haddad Told Not to File Tax Suit

Interim City Attorney Myron B. Haas told the Seaside City Council last night that a court attack on the state's method of distributing sales tax proceeds probably would fail.

"There is no precedent to support a suit of that sore and it would amount to an attack by our city on taxes inposed by other cities, like Del Rey Oaks or Monterey," Haas said.

Haas' report disappointed Mayor Louis N. Haddad, who two weeks ago proposed such a suit as a way to end competition among cities for regional shopping centers.

It was recently ruled by the California Supreme Court that the local property tax was an unconstutional method of financing education because it was unfair to poor communities. Haddad had suggested that the sale tax method could be challenged on the same grounds.

The 1-percent local sales tax in addition to the statewide 4 percent tax -- is levied by local governments, collected by merchants and turned over to the state, which deducts a small fee and returns the rest to cities in direct proportion to their taxable sales.

Seaside gets about $730,000 in this way.

If the tax proceeds were distributed on a per capita basis, Haddad estimated, Seaside would get approximately $730,000. This would be fairer, he argued and estimate intercity competition for retail store outlets like shopping centers.

Education has always been considered a special case said Haas and that the state requires children to be educated for the welfare of the state.

He noted that city services were not viewed this way and an attempt to equalize the methods of financing them would be impracticable.

In last week's action the council: 1. Combined the board of architectural review, the tree committee and a special committee of getaway project design into one five-member board. 2. Rezoned the Robert Blatt property at 480 Palm Avenue from highway service to residental.

3. Declared rubbish and weeds at 1768 Laguna Street a public nuisance, and ordered them removed. 4. Introduced ordiance providing a more flexible method of setting meeting times for city committees, boards and commissions. 5. Authorize solicitation of bids for Wanda Avenue improvement project. 6. Heard a report on the antipoverty council of the Monterey Peninsula by Councilman Stephen Ross. 7. Approved agreement with the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District on a cooperative after-school recreation program. 8. Authorized hiring of a consultant, to be paid with federal funds, for design of the echo Fremont traffic signal.

River Unsafe

A stretch of the Salinas River has been declared unsafe for water contact sports in a six mile area following a finding in a state and county study.

Walter Wong, county sanitarian, told the Central Coastal Regional Water Quality Control board meeting at Seaside City hall last week, "waters were polluted."

Most of the board's time was spent at a morning session discussing a $1.7 million industrial waste facility planned near the river by Salinas. Bids on the project according to Mayor Jack Barnes were to start Wednesday of this week.

The city had protested some recent more stringent requirements placed on the project by the board.

Barnes said, "at this time when we are ready to start construction, you should not throw 'a monkey wrench into the works," and he also asked "that no changes be made in present standards until AMBAG (Association of Monterey Bay Governments) study of the entire county watershed areas is completed.

A representative of a large landholder who owns adjacent property asked that the city not be permitted to proceed with its waster facility at all until the AMBAG study is complete.

Many property owners in the area are fearful of the potential damage to nearby wells which supply both domestic and irrigation water.

At a late hour, the board rejected Salinas protests saying action would add $500,000 to the cost of their project.

Last week the City of Monterey was to hear a request for extension of the 1974 deadline for discharging wastes in Monterey Bay. The cities Seaside and Pacific Grove were expected to oppose the request because both cities are ready to go ahead with tri-city joint sewage project.

Monterey is seeking the extension because its city officials are not certain that a proposed Point Pinos ocean outfall line is the best solution.

Next-To-New Sale Planned

The Next-to-New Sale Sponsored by the Nunior League of the Monterey Peninsula, Inc., will be held Saturday, November 6, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday, November 7 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Monterey County Fairgrouds. The Sunday sale will be half price. No half-price sales will be made on Saturday.

The Exhibition Hall, as well as Agriculture and Horticulture Building will be used to display the large amount of new and nearly new merchandise.

Total proceeds realized from the 1971 Sale wil be returned to the community through the Junior League's financial sulport of projects in the field of art, education, and welfare.

Be Cautious On Halloween

"Trick-or-Treat Time" in Monterey County will be observed from 5 pm to 8 pm on Sunday, October 31. To prevent hazards and accidents, here are suggested safety rules:

for children

* masks make it hard for you to see. Use make-up instead.
* wait until you get home to taste the "goodies". Let your parents see the treats before you eat them.
* wear bright costumes because they are easier for motorist to see. It's a good idea to have reflective tape on costumes.
 if you carry a pumpkin, light it with a flashlight instead of a candle.
* cross streets only at corners - never between parked cars.
* look in all directions before crossing the street.
* watch for and obey all traffic signals.
* wait on the curb - not the street -before crossing.
* be polite and courteous at all times.

for parents

* Children should carry flashlights after dark.
* Parents - or a responsible adult - should accompany the children.
* Tell your children to bring treat home before eating them so that you can inspect the treats.
* Don't let the children travel in "gangs". Groups of 3 or 4 are best from the standpoint of safety. . .and for the benefit of the householders.
* Have children go only where porch lights, or other welcoming lights, are on.
* Only young children should participate. Children 12 or older should be discouraged from taking part.
* Try to stay in your own neighborhoods. Householders are getting concerned about strange "gangs" coming from distant places.

for householder

* if you wish to welcome "Trick-or-treaters", turn on your porch lights from 5 to 8 pm, Sunday, October 31, 1971.
* offer only factory-wrapped or sealed treats to avoird problems or misunderstandings.

for motorists

* please be especially careful to watch for children during 5 to 8 pm.

Editors Flunk Soul Test

Some of the editors who run news services for the country have flunked a relatively simple "soul test" administered to check out their black culture knowledge.

Thirteen questions devised by a psychologist, sociologist and historian were posed to 300 delegates at the 38th annual convention of the Associated Press Managing Editors Association.

Robert J. Haiman, St. Petersburg (Fla.) Times, chairman of the minority news study committee, told the editors, all white, that the quiz was tested in nine states -- none named -- and that blacks averaged 8 out of 13 and whites just 3.

"I know that we APME editors can score a great deal higher than that," Hailman said, before reading the questions.

However, the editors, responsible for the news and pictures that go into America's dailies, did not. Most scored 3 or less correct answers.

Here are the questions:

If a man is called a "blood" then he is a fighter, a Chicano, a Negro, an Indian.

2. If a black reader of your paper, thinks it is "real down" he thinks it it is - very good, very bad, racist, or symphathetic to blacks.

3. The opposite of "square" is - cool, up, down, hip.

T-BONE

4. T-Bone Walker got famous playing what musical instrument - trombone, piano, flute, guitar.

5. Who did Stagger Lee kill in the famous Blues legend-- Frankie, his mother, Johnnie, Billy.

6. Jazz pianist Ahmad Jamal adopted that Arabic name after he was discovered by white audiences and became famous. Black jazz fans know him under his prior name which was - Willie Jackson, Lee Jones, Will Donald or Fritz Jones.

HOW LONG?

7. Cheap chitlins taste rubbery unless you cook them long enough. How long should they be cooked - 15 minutes, 2 hours, 24 hours, 1 hour.

8. The first American pioneer to settle on the site of what is now Chicago was a black man. What was his name?

9. Many blacks say June 19 should be made a legal holiday in the United States because it was the day -- the slaves were freed in the United States, the slaves were freed in Texas, Martin Luther King was born, Booker T. Washington died.

10. The first doctor to perform open heart surgery was a black American, nearly 70 years ago. Who was he?

11. A black surgeon developed the technique for extracting and perserving plasma and from whole blood? What was his name?

12. Everyone is familiar with the famous painting of George Washington crossing the Delaware. Two of his oarsmen were blacks. What were their names?

13. Every managing editor knows Soledad Brother George Jackson was shot to death this past August at San Quentin. But who are the two surviving Soledad Brothers?

Now here are the answers:

1. Negro. 2. Very good. 3. Hip. 4. Guitar. 5. Billy. 6. Fritz Jones. 7. Two hours. 8. Jean Baptiste DuSable.

9. The slaves were freed in Texas. 10. Dr. Daniel Hale Williams. 11. Dr. Charles Drew. 12. Prince Whippie and Oliver Cromwell. 13. John Clutchette and Fleeta Drumgo.

Haiman told the editors they shouldn't feel disappointed they did so badly, that members of his committee which had worked all year in black news, black history and black culture didn't get very many right either.

But he added that the quiz, hopefully, will focus attention of newspaper editors "on the real heart of the problem -- the gap between black readers and white editors."

Seaside Ripples

A. E. 'Andy' Barragan, Publisher

A.E. Barragan

My wife and I took off on a trip to Sacramento last weekend. We didn't realize that it was a holiday weekend and the traffic all of the way was very heavy. Many people were on the road with campers and boats, heading for the hills. With the hunting season added to the lure of the mountains, Reno and Lake Tahoe, it was indeed a crowded road all the way. However it was a beautiful day and it was pleasant driving in spirt of the crowd.

The site of those set me to wondering where people get all of the money to pay for those expensive campers and trailers and boats. This array of expensive equipment isn't owned by the "rich" people. It is owned, or rather used, by just ordinary working people like you and me. It is the bank that really owns all of them including the car that is pulling them. But then, it is only another sign of the affluent society under which we are presently living. If a person earns enough money to make all of the payments and his wife is able to work, too, then he might make it, provided that neither gets laid off for a few months somewhere along the line.

I somesimes wonder why I worry about taxes, unemployment, the war in Vietnam, the desegregation of our schools and all of the other problems that beset our society today when I see all of these accoutrements of our affluent society all around us.

At lease for this one weekend holiday, all of those problems were either solving themselves or, at least, they were getting solved without

with BETTY MANN

Hi, there, Fellow Peninsulans:

Happiness is buying a spanking new 1971 Safari station wagon at Butts Pontiac for a substantial savings. Some of the beautiful people at Butts who helped make the deal possible were Al Hutcheson, general sales manager and Virgil London, salesman. The deal was possible because they are clearing out their new 1971 cars to make room for the '72's and besides I am a pretty fast talker! (smiles) No kiddding, dear readers, if you are in the market for a new car, the time to buy is now, while the freeze is on and while the salesman at Butts are in their chipper, dipper moods. (smiles).

There was a swinging Elks Ball at the San Carlos Hotel last Saturday night. It was followed by a big bash Sunday at the Elks Club that featured barbequed pig, booze and soul food to delight. One thing I will say about the "Black" Elks Lodge is that they have put one over of the "White" Elks Lodge. One of the lodge members is a "white soul brother", who seems quite happy to be surrounded by his "black brothers." (By the way ladies, I hear he is a bachelor, too!)

Wow! Did you notice in last week's paper that under my daughter's pic (Faces Around the Bay) it said she was a graduate of Seaside High School. Well, sorry, but she and my son, Maurice both attended Monterey High.

I was told that Marie Sweet and Elizabeth Smith were presented some sort of plaque by Dr. Henry Hutchins, president of the local NAACP, for meritorious work in the organization. It seems that "Sweet Marie" wasn't too happy with the photos taken of her. In fact, she said she thought they made her look like she should attend Weight Watchers. Well, don't feel alone Marie. I saw myself on video tape at MPC recently. WOW! Was I astounded. I didn't know I looked like that to the public. It's back to Weight Watchers and the Big Bag for me!!!!

Also of interest around the "Seaside ghetto," as our uptown neighbors like to call it, is that the Black Muslim brothers and sisters have established a mosque here. Well, right on to you. Perhaps in the near future, they will open a restaurant and treat us to some of that good clean, delicious food (known as "food to live by") they are famous for. Betty.

MPC Paper Honored

The Monterey Peninsula College student newspaper, El Yanqui, has been listed by the Associated Collegiate Press as an All-American paper for fall 1970.

The award is the highest given by the press association, which has its headquarters at the University of Minnesota School of Journalism. Newspapers are judged according to the size college which each serves.

In addition to awarding the All-American rating, the judges gave El Yanqui "marks of distinction" in content and coverage, writing and editing, editorial leadership and photography.

The fall semester managing editor of El Yanqui was Bill Schiffman, now a senior at Frano State College majoring in journalism.

Rod Holmgren, the faculty advisor to El Yanqui, commented, "I'm particularly pleased with this award because it indicates that we have successfully completed the transition from the old hot-type newspaper to the cold-type offset newspaper. Starting from the second edition last fall, all production, except press work was done by the students in the laboratory.

Voice of Democracy Scholarship Program

Commander Walter P. McGriff of Fort Ord Memorial Post 811 says, "students who participate in the Veterans of Foreign Wars Voice of Democracy Scholarship program win more awards.

"Some of the fringe benefits allotted those who participate said Jack Juell, Monterey County Commander, are increased self confidence, greater poise, the ability to communicate and valuable practice in expressind ideas clearly."

State scholarship winners also get the experience of a five day tour of Washington D.C., and the opportunity to meet other winners in the state with the possibility of developing lasting friendships.

In the 10 years that the Veterans have been sole sponsors of the Voice of Democracy Program, more than 4,000,000 high school and college students have participated.

In order to participate, entranst must write and then tape record a three-to-five minute broadcast script expressing their personal views on their "responsibility to freedom."

After state winners are selected, five national winners are chosen to receive $22,500 in scholarships and Dr. Allen H. Drake, Voive of Democracy Chairman said, "one of the greatest benefits to young people who take part in the program, is that by thinking and writing or speaking on Freedom's responsibility, they gain a better appreciation of democracy in action."

The present contest is the 25th Annual Voice of Democracy National Broadcasting Scholarship program, designed to give high school students the opportunity to voice their opinions on a patriotic theme and to convey their thoughts via the broadcasting media to all America.

Any student in high school grades 10-12th are eligible to participate throughout the country and in possessions or territories.

Those wishing further information on the contest should contact Harold Richardson at 284-8547 or write to Veterans of Foreign Wars, Ford Ord Memorial Post 811. Marina, Calif., 93933.

Bill Norton, formerly editor and publisher of the Carmel Valley Outlook and a teaching intern last fall, worked with the students in the production phase of the paper.

RAFFLE TIME - Old saying, "Money doesn't grow on trees," may be true, but it certainly can look that way. Fort Ord's Non-Commissioned Officers Wives Club is sponsoring money tree from now until November 10. According to Mrs. Sandy Soper (left), vice president and welfare chairman, and Mrs. Margo Armstrong (right), club member, 25 percent of donations will go toward the Scholarship Fund and 75 percent will be placed in club''s treasury for their annual Christmas Ball. Drawing will take place at post'' NCO Club at 8 p.m., November 10. Winner will receive $100 prize. Tickets may be purchased at club from board member in main lobby.

my help. One thing did distress me though as we drove speedily along one of the new freeways between San Jose and Sacramento. There didn't seem to be any farms or orchards left. Those few that still exist around San Jose and near Sacramento seem to be getting crowded out by subdivisions. Every time I go up to Sacramento, it seems like another group of houses or apartments are in what used to be a grove of plum or peach trees or a farm of some kind. Where there isn't a house or apartment, there is an auto dealer or a new factory built on beautiful flat farm land.

The farm land that we have here in California is probably the richest in the nation, since it was made flat and rich by the continual rains and rivers washing the rich moutain soil down into the valleys to form what is now the richest top soil available anywhere in the world. Yet we have allowed, throught our poor planning and our antiquated tax laws, this rich farm land to fall into the hands of unscrupulous developers whose only reason for building and subdividing was to make the most money they could by building as many units of housing possible on the smallest possible parcel of ground. And the cheapest way was to start with flat land that didn't need any grading other than to put in the streets and gutters.

This is understandable inasmuch as we thought a few years ago that we would never run out of land. However the world is faced with a shortage of food to feed itself and we have for the last fifty years or more been using up our richest farm land to plant houses which in many cases are now becoming suburban slums.

I know that in the city of Salinas because of some wise planning on someone's part that there has been zoning to prevent any more of the farm land from being gobbled up by rich developers and thereby maybe we will be able to save some of the rich Salinas valley soil to grow crops on. I said that it was understandable why developers build on flat land because of the low grading costs and the ease with which they can put up more units per acre. Naturally it would cost more to put the houses on hillsides where the costs would be more. And, of course, then the homeowner would have to pay more for his house. This doesn't have to be true if we would give up our antiquated laws in regards to building codes. There are enough new materisla on the market to pre-fabricate houses just like automobiles and cut the costs tremendously. However the unions in the construction industry, together with their friends, the contractors and the old-line building inspectors, won't let them repeal those century-old laws which would make it cheaper to build houses. Then there are also the banks and lending institutions who have hiked up the costs of borrowing money so that you are paying three times for your house by the time you are finished in 30 years.

There are many areas where our federal government could step up and subsidize the housing industry so that we could all afford to own a house and not one on a flat former farm either. In the first place, the government could forbid any more farm land from being gobbled up by some changes in the tax laws which would make it profitable to continue it in farm use. Then they could subsidize the grading on the hillsides so that a developer could make just as much money by building these. Besides, we would all have a view, too. I could go on and on as to how the federal government which by the way, is pledged to provide every citizen with a decent place to live under our constitution and housing

As I See It

By Mel Vercoe

Her patients were dying by the hundreds. There were not enough nurses, there was no medicine, the strench from lack of sanitary facilities was nauseating, and still the wounded were being brought in.

The Crimean war was another religious war. The Russians and Turkey and France and Sardinia got into a big how-do about who had the right to protect the Christians in the Sultan's territory, and along came England, concerned more than anything else that Russia might win and threaten British interests in India.

The nurse was Florence Nightingale, a physically fragile but determined and courageous woman from England who thought it was wrong that soldiers should be just left to die without any attempt being made to save them or even ease their pain.

She fought a very frustrating uphill battle to try to get official support or even permission for her hopes to do something for those men dying in the Crimea. After many months she managed to recruit some women to help her - none of them nurses with any medical training - just some women willing to help. Nursing was a brand new thing in Europe in 1854. There weren't any text books. There were no schools. Miss Nightingale taught them all she could, just on her own.

For all practical purposes the British government did everything it could to discourage her from taking her little group of nurses to the Crimea. After all, it is one thing to be able to report glorious victories, or even glorious defeats (like the Charge of the Light Brigade), but it is something else again to have someone writing letters back to influential people about the horrible conditions and the unnecessary suffering.

Bandages and other materials were deliberately delayed in shipment. Her requests for help in trying to clean up the makeshift building that passed for a hospital were ignored. For lack of enough help the wounded soldiers were dying in their own excrement. The water supply was contaminated. Cholera was completely out of control, and yet she stayed there and refused to give up and go home to the comforts of England.

One of the most painful decisions she had to make was on priorities. Many times she faced the choice of whether to stop and try to help an individual patient, possibly saving his life, or of continuing on so that she might supervise the other nurses and possibly save ten or twenty lives.

Because of Florence Nightingale there was a complete change in the treatment of wounded soldiers. Instead of being just allowed to die like cattle, it became standard practice to try to save their lives. They were at long last being treated like human beings. It would be pure conjecture to guess that without Miss Nightingale's work we would not have the present high standards in military medical treatment that we have today. Nobody will ever know for sure.

Fortunately, few of us today have to make the choices Florence Nightingale had to make, but we have other choices as we face the fact that we can't give full attention to every issue before us. Almost every day we have options. We can spend an hour or a dollar or some effort on a movie on TV or on a golf game, or we can spend the same amount of time, money and energy doing things for others, and some place along the line find a happy medium that is an acceptable compromise.

acts, could provide the know-how and money to save our dwindling farmland. It is just a matter of getting our priorities straightened out. It could be done by just cutting out just one moonshot, one ballistic missile, one nuclear submarine, one aircraft carrier, one less trip for Vice-President Agnew and so on and on. Just imagine the money we would have left for the saving of our rich farmland if we gave it priority over any one of those projects that I just mentioned. It's worth ta,king about anyway.

Enjoy yourself on your next trip. I did!

Senators Are Angry

Senator Alan Cranston announced that 59 Senators--18 Republicans and 41 Democrats--have signed a letter to President Nixon protesting the Administration's new regulations for the National School Lunch Program.

The new regulations would eliminate an estimated million school children from getting free lunches or lunches at reduced prices. More than 100,000 of them live in California.

Cranston, a member of the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs which oversees the school lunch program was one of five Senators who originated the letter. The other were: Philip A. Hart (D., Mich.), Harrison A. Williams, Jr. (D., N. J.), Marlow W. Cook (R., Ky) and Clifford P. Case (R., N. J.).

"Contrary to the intent of Congress," Cranston said, "the Department of Agriculture has arbitrarily revised the school lunch regulations to establish the equivalet of $3,940 per year for a family of four as a cut-off in determining children eligible for the free and reduced-price lunch program. Congress clearly intended this level to be a national minimum income standard which states could exceed if conditions dictated."

Cranston pointed out that "major industrial states like California chose to exceed this minimum level. In California, all children from families with incomes below $3,940 receive free lunches. Reduced-price lunches, where the child pays 20 cents or less, are available to children from families of the working poor with incomes slightly above the national income level."

"If the administration's regulation is allowed to stand, at least 100,000 California school children will be eliminated from the reduced-price lunch program."

"This is a conservative estimate," Cranston continued. "Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles tells me that his office has set a goal of 750,000 children this school year for participation in the free and reduced-price lunch program.

QUALITY CONTROL

Much of the estimated $130 million or more which the brewing industry expends every year for plant modernization goes into processing equipment designed to assure top-quality beer and ale.

WHAT'S WRONG

National Health Services officials in Chile, concerned with malnutrition among the population, indicate the main solution to the problem is milk, and have embarked upon a crash program to solve the problem in their nation.

Explore Israel

Nationally acclaimed cinematographer Clay Francisco will appear in person to narrate his new feature length travel adventure film "Israel" as the second event of the current Explorama series.

The color film will be screened at 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday, November 5 and 6, in Carmel's Sunset Cultural Center Auditorium.

Francisco spent four months on location in Israel and his film deals primarily with the every day lives of the people of Israel today. The fil consists of a series of human interest vignettes ranging from the story of the strictly orthodox Jews, whose beliefs contrast with those of the energetic young Sabras (native-born Israelis), to the story of the nomadic Bedouin and the modern children of Israel.

Francisco has been producing travel adventure films dealing with various countries since 1958.

Reserved seat tickets at $3 and $3.50 are now available at Abinante Music Store in Monterey and the Julia Marlowe Box Office at the Sunset Center in Carmel. Reserved seat series tickets for the last six programs of the Explorama Series are also available at $13.50.

Discus

By Art Tagle

Very rarely do I get a chance to review an album that is as fresh in concept as "And I'll Come Back." This first release of young composer-arranger John Wood contains ten contemporary songs, which have a taste of the 21st century.

The album, whose Spanish title is "Y Volvere", is composed of songs written in Spain and Mexico, as well as the United States. These give an international flavor to the art' ist's impressionistic offerings.

Wood's expertise as an arranger is illustrated by the sease with which he frequently switches from electronic piano and organ to vibes, marimba and percussion.

Accompanying Wood on his release are John Koenig on accoustic and electric guitar and John Guerin on drums. All three blend together well to give the listener some pleasure.

When you finish with your copy of The POST Newspaper, pass it on to a friend or relative.

Of particular listening pleasure is Wood's own composition "She Loves (Her Oleander Tree)" and his interpretations of Herbie Hancock's "Maiden Voyage" and Gary Burton's "Throb."

John Wood's "And I'll Come Back" is a welcome addition to the instumental music field.

Nixon Covers Much Ground, Enroute To Meet Emperor

By Mary Ellen Perry,
POST Staff Writer

President Nixon lent the weight of his office to efforts to settle the drawn-out West Coast dock strike during his whirlwind tour of the Northwest last weekend.

Saturday, he toured a dam site in Montana and briefed newspaper and broadcasting executives in Portland, Oregon. Sunday, he visited Washington and greeted Japan's Empeor Hirochito in Alaska.

Also on Saturday, he announced the repeal of the long-feared Title II of the Internal Security Act of 1950, which contained provisions for the use of concentration camps in the event of a national "internal security emergency."

The president may have coordinated the signing of the repeal with his meeting with the Japanese Emperor, who was on his way to Europe in the first trip abroad ever taken by a Japanese Emperor.

But apparently more crucial to the President and his advisors was the need to repair relations with Asia's most industrialized country -- and the world's third largest economic power -- in the face of his sudden support of Mainland China and his moves to strengthen the American dollar at the expense of the Japanese yen, if necessary.

China has been an historic enemy of Japan, so that Nixon's policy reversal has created anxiety in that nation. His 10 percent import tax on foreign goods, levied to boost the sagging American economy, may hurt Japan's trading strength.

HECKLERS

The intracicies of foreign and domestic politics seemed lost on a small group of hecklers amidst the friendly group greeting President and Mrs. Nixon at Portland Air Base, about 10 miles from downtown, Saturday afternoon.

Air Force One, the Presidential silver and blue jet, touched down to cheers from the partisan crowd and the cheers continued as the plane's doors opened and the Nixons stood poised just inside.

After being greeted by local dignitaries, the Nixons indulged in a bit of handshaking before the President reviewed his reasons for visiting Montana, Oregon, Washington and Alaska.

"I especially want the young people here today to know," the President said, partially in response to the hecklers, "that over half the people living in the world today were born since the end of World War II." He seemed to be saying that those born since the end of that war would not understand the importance of maintaining good relations between Japan and the United States.

DISAGREE

But when he insisted that he is ending the war in Vietnam, the small group of young people loudly disagreed.

The President touched on the need for protection of the environment, adding he thought that issue was of great concern to Oregonians. He also referred to the need to settle the West Coast dock strike.

The Presidential Party left the air base by limousine for the Benson Hotel in downtown Portland where a late afternoon briefing and reception was held for a group of Western newspaper and broadcasting executives.

They had been invited from Alaska, Arizona, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

NEWS CONFERENCE

Earlier on Saturday, top Presidential aides held a press conference at the Portland Hilton Hotel, where they routinely reiterated administration policies.

Those participating were John Erlichmann, assistant to the President; Secretary of the Interior Rogers Morton; Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson; George Schultz, head of the Office of Management and the Budget, and Director of Communications Herb Klein.

Schulzt said the Administration believes the wage-price freeze is working and that it has been "widely accepted" by both management and the rank and file.

There answers to other questions indicated that:

*The federal government was trying to help ease the high employment situation in the State of Washington;

*The Administration was trying to reform the international monetary system;

*Programs for the poor would be boosted at the local level if Congress approves the President's revrnue-sharing proposals;

*Interests of the Teamsters Union must be considered in settling the dock strike;

*The Administration was loathe to invoke the Taft-Hartley law to impose an 80-day cooling-off period on the dock strike.

TAFT-HARTLEY

However, Nixon later told key figures in the dock strike that he would "automatically" invoke the Taft-Hartley Act and order the striking longshoremen back to work if the East Coast longshoremen join the walkout when their contract expires September 30.

"If the strike goes on and the parties simply seem not to be able to get together then we'll have to step in," the president said.

Although the face-to-face meeting with Harry Bridges, president of the striking International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, and Ed Flynn, president of the Pacific Maritime Association, the employer group, brought no instant settlement in the then-87 day walkout, both sides promised the President they would attempt to reach an agreement within a week.

Man Ain't Supposed to Cry

By Tom Nash

He stands tall with head bowed low,
His pockets empty, no place to go,
His belly hungry, ain't got no dough,
But a man ain't supposed to cry.

His children asking with an outstretched hand,
No bread on the table, don't understand,
Cause Daddy's able and always planned,
That a man ain't supposed to cry.

He went to work, the other day
On a laborer's job, very little pay;
This made him glad that he could say
A man ain't supposed to cry.

Then the white boss, looked at him with a frown,
Said "I can't use you, go back to town
Get off my property, 'fore I knock you down,"
Yet a man ain't supposed to cry.

"What did I do, What did I say?
What causes you to treat me in this way?"
He shook his head and drew his pay,
'Cause a man ain't supposed to cry.

As he headed home he felt the fear
Of committing an act that would cause a tear
Of sorrow to his family for many a year,
But a man ain't supposed to cry.

What do I do, what do I say?
Do I fall on my knees and begin to pray?
Or do I pick up my gun and go out and slay?
For a man ain't supposed to cry.

He didn't go out and demonstrate,
Nor with the militants participate;
Now he's burning up with hate,
For a man ain't supposed to cry.

Hunger makes a man do almost anything
It won't make him happy, nor will he sing,
For food to his family, he must bring,
Cause a man ain't supposed to cry.

Check On Digitalis Tablets

Parke-Davis & Company, a drug manufacturer, is recalling 106,000 digitalis tablets on orders of the federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA), which thinks the tablets are about 8 percent too strong.

A Parke-Davis spokesman said the recall began on August 23.

Being recalled are tablets sold under the trade name "Digifortis" in lots number KL215 and KL216, first distributed last November.

The FDA warning that these tablets might harm heart patients did not come until spring.

No illnesses from the tablets have been reported by the FDA.

The company spokesman said scientific tests which they made showed no consumer health hazard from the pills.

"Our tests show they were within the prescribed limits. The FDS tests showed otherwise. There was an honest, scientific difference of opinion," he said.

The only way a consumer can tell if he possesses any of the tablets is to check through his pharmacy to see if it received any part of the two lots in question.

The tablets are rebottled in smaller lots before being sold at the retail level.
